1. The first step in the process of the investigation is to identify the problem or issue that needs to be addressed. This involves gathering information and understanding the context of the situation.

2. Once the problem is identified, the next step is to define the objectives of the investigation. These objectives should be clear, measurable, and achievable.

3. The third step is to develop a plan of action. This plan should outline the steps that will be taken to address the problem, including the methods that will be used to collect data and analyze it.

4. The fourth step is to implement the plan. This involves carrying out the steps outlined in the plan and collecting data as needed.

5. The final step is to evaluate the results of the investigation. This involves comparing the results to the objectives and determining whether the problem has been solved or if further action is needed.

1. The first step in the process of identifying a problem is to define the problem. This involves identifying the symptoms of the problem and determining the scope of the problem. Once the problem has been defined, the next step is to identify the causes of the problem. This involves identifying the factors that are contributing to the problem and determining the underlying causes. Once the causes have been identified, the next step is to develop a plan of action. This involves identifying the steps that need to be taken to solve the problem and determining the resources that will be needed to implement the plan. Finally, the last step in the process is to implement the plan and monitor the results. This involves putting the plan into action and tracking the progress of the solution. Once the problem has been solved, the final step is to evaluate the results and determine if the solution was effective.
