The image depicts a large, two-story stone building with a tiled roof, likely a rural residence or farm building. The facade is made of light-colored stone, showing signs of age and wear. A prominent feature is a large arched entrance on the ground floor. Above it, there are several windows, some with bars. The roof is covered in traditional terracotta tiles. The building is surrounded by a dirt road and lush green vegetation, including tall grass and weeds. In the background, another smaller structure is visible under a clear blue sky.
